GAYLORD AND MANISTEE GAMES

LOCALS VICTORIOUS IN TWO FAST CONTESTS.

Grayling Newspaper Criticizes
Local Base Ball Tactics.

(WRITTEN BY L. D. FUNK)

July 16, the Grayling base ball team journeyed over to Gaylord to cross bat with the Gaylord Independents for the third time, Grayling having two games to their credit and Gaylord one; but according to the Gaylord base ball slate each had won a game and Grayling had stole the third game. In order that no misunderstanding might arise the locals took it upon themselves to make the game a clean victory, one without a question, and by the way the game ended it could easily be seen they more than kept their promise. 9 to 4 tells the story and indeed it was a sad story for Gaylord fans to swallow as they had all the confidence in their ball team, that on this day they would add another victory over their rivals.

The locals were met at the train by a band composed of six members dressed to represent hobos and their main idea was to poke fun at the Grayling rooters and team, but for some reason after Grayling had made several runs in the fore part of the game the instruments began to fall them and at the end of the game they were all ready to return to their respective fire places contented that the Grayling fans could take care of themselves. Grayling placed Goode on the mound to hold up their end of the pitching and he pitched a winning ball throughout the entire game, holding the Gaylord sluggers at his mercy at all times. Gaylord called on Smoky Joe Hale to uphold their end and his was a sad fate as was that of Roscott, who followed him. Joe was on the hill top for four innings when he went to the cellar and the famous Roscott, who held Grayling to three runs here last Sunday, was called to take his place, but his fate was even worse and he retired in one inning in favor of Goodrow, who pitched winning ball through the latter part of the game.

Grayling scored one run in each of the first three innings, three in the fourth, one in the fifth and one in the ninth. Gaylord scored one in the third, one in the fifth, sixth and seventh. Features of the game were three base hits by Creech and Haire, and the hitting of Longdo for Gaylord.

NOTES OF THE GAME

Creech's three base smash in the

Johnson's hit in the first inning was one of the hardest hit balls seen on the Grayling field in some time. It

Haire hit for three sacks just inside the third base line.

It was certainly some game for

The hobo band didn't even please the home folks.

Grayling was satisfied after the game that they had not been robbed.

Haire was called out at third when he was tagged by Toranzo who was in

What Other Cities Say of the Chautauqua.

From the "Tawas Herald"—"Finest thing that ever came to Tawas City." "Best I ever heard." "Worth many times the price." These are some of the comments heard on our streets regarding the Chautauqua which was in progress here the first five days of the week, closing last evening. And as a matter of fact the Chautauqua merited all the nice things said about it, for the program exceeded the expectations of even its most ardent advocates.

The unpropitious weather of the first two days interfered seriously with the attendance, many people who had intended coming being deterred by the rain and threatening skies. However, the tent was filled to its capacity on the last three days and the patrons were enthusiastic over the entertainment afforded them.

From the Independent, Standish—The five day Chautauqua which came to a close Tuesday evening was excellent and thoroughly enjoyed by the hundreds of people in daily attendance. As is usual in communities where the Chautauqua is held for the first time, it was not a financial success either for the company or for the local men backing the proposition. However, the majority feel that the outlay was well spent and the returns were made up in the pleasure, enlightenment and inspiration it brought to the people.

In fact, the people of the community are so much pleased with the pleasure and good that a Chautauqua gives that Monday night when Dr. Hill started to get ticket pledges for next year over 500 were pledged in less than 10 minutes. All agree that there has never been a series of entertainments in this locality that were so pleasing and at the same time instructive and inspirational. There is little doubt but that 600 or 700 season tickets will be sold before the seasons open next year.

THE OTSEGO ARE COMING.

Mr. Stephens Writes Gaylord
Editor.

"You may officially announce that I have organized a base ball team, the Otsego," writes Mr. Henry Stephens to the editor of the Herald and Times, "which is able to put a crimp in anything that has ever been put in the field in Michigan, Detroit included, and I will endeavor to take some of the conceit out of the Gaylord base ball team if they will give me a game. I will also badly defeat the Grayling team on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 5 and 6 and on Labor Day, September 7."

Mr. Stephens has arranged for an excursion from Bay City to Grayling and from Mackinac to Grayling on Sunday, September 6. He also asks to have announced that the whole town of Gaylord will be invited to his lawn in Gaylord on the day of the Gaylord game, where a "special brew" will be served free.

For some weeks Mr. Stephens has been looking around for base ball timber and he has been able to pick up some of the very best players in the country for his team this season. While the Otsego were easily the winners of the state championship last season it is declared they will carry away the pennant with much more ease this year than they did last.—Gaylord Herald-Times.

hearty congratulations and best wishes.

Those present from out of the city were Mr. and Mrs. A. Fredman of Milwaukee, parents of the groom; Samuel and Rachel Joseph of Detroit, brother and sister of the bride; Henry, Rhea and Ethel Wolf of Detroit, cousins of the bride.

The bride couple, accompanied by the groom's parents, left the next day for Milwaukee, where they will remain for a few days, then go to Chicago and other cities for an extended honeymoon. They will be at home to their friends at 429 Twenty-Seventh street, Milwaukee, after August 15th.

Merritt Chandler.

The legislative district comprising the counties of Crawford, Montmorency, Oshtemo and Presque Isle is far from being as populous, or as wealthy, as a good many other districts of the state, but it seems to have gotten into the habit of selecting a distinctively representative citizen to be its member at Lansing.

For the past two legislatures its member has been J. Lee Morford, banker and manufacturer at Gaylord, who will probably be returned this year as a senator. To succeed him in the lower house Merritt Chandler, of Onaway, is proposed by republicans, and he has strong endorsements. Mr. Chandler is probably the best known citizen of the district, as well as one of the most substantial. Born on a farm in Lenawee county, he lived there the first 27 years of his life. Then he moved to Cheboygan and engaged in lumbering; built the state road from Petoskey to Presque Isle harbor, founded the village of Onaway in 1887, which in five years jumped from a population of 75 to 5,000, had branch steam railroad built into it, established a saw mill and hardwood manufacturing plant, and cleared and stocked what is now one of the finest stock farms in his section of the state. Seven years ago he was a member of the convention that revised the state constitution.—Detroit News. Adv.

IS IT NOT TRUE?

With all due respect to other aspirants, the Outlook assumes the attitude that Hon. Merritt Chandler of our city is by odds the preferable candidate for the office of representative from the Presque Isle district, on the following counts:

1. Being a man of responsibility as a land owner and taxpayer he would at all times be on the constant lookout to conserve the best financial interests of his constituents.

2. Being a man of wide experience in many branches of mercantile life, he would give his constituents the benefit of this experience by safeguarding them from wild and extravagant legislation, which to the knowledge of all has been the bane of less experienced men.

3. Being a member of the constitutional convention in 1907-8 he is cognizant of practically every law now on our statute books, and is therefore in a position to more intelligently interpret the need of further legislation along any particular line.

4. Being a man of principle and clear judgment he would not be awayed by either the cunning or polish of any make-believe man or number of men to help push through any manner of legislation which would be to the detriment of the public at large.

5. Mr. Chandler is a man of the people, for the people and with the people, who would stand only for clean and wholesome legislation.

6. Mr. Chandler is not a flash in the pan, for with him deeds and not words speak, and in the committee rooms where the real legislation always takes place, the people of the Presque Isle District would have a man they could rely upon, for he has been tried and has not been found wanting.

Gentlemen of the District:—The Outlook, the paper of his own city and county, appeals to your sense of honor and good judgment to give Mr. Chandler your loyal support at the primaries to be held on August 25th next, and take our word for it, you will neither be sorry or disappointed.—Onaway Outlook. BONDS APPROVED FOR NEW ROAD

THREE MILLION DOLLARS FOR LINE FROM PONTIAC TO OWOSSO.

WILL GO THROUGH FENTON

Company Recently Organized By Detroit Man Is Authorized to Finance Big Project.

Lansing, Mich.—The state railroad commission Saturday authorized a $3,000,000 bond issue to the Detroit, Pontiac & Owasco Railway Co., an electric company recently incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. Dr. Oliver H. Lau, of Detroit, is the chief promoter. The railroad commission orders that the money received from the sale of the bonds shall be turned into the treasurer of the new company and only be used when authorized by the commission, which will be when work on the line is commenced.

The proposed line will run from Pontiac to Owasco and will go through Clarkston, Fenton and other places along the proposed route. The Independent Power Co. now has a power plant at Fenton which creates more electric power than is being used, and it is proposed to take the extra power from this plant, combine it with the power created by a steam plant to be built, and thus operate the new electric line.

Dr. Lau has been instrumental in starting several electric lines in the state during recent years, and the proposed line is said to go through a territory that ought to warrant the building of an electric line.

Eagle Harbor, Mich.—For the second time in 25 years the people of Eagle Harbor have seen a mirage of Isle Royale. The spectacle was witnessed as the sun was setting. GREAT RAILROAD STRIKE AVERTED

FEDERAL BOARD OF MEDIATORS WILL TAKE UP WAGE DISPUTE.

SHORTER HOURS ARE ASKED

Conference Had Been Suspended and Great Industrial Strife Seemed Assured When Leaders Accepted Board's Offer.

Chicago.—The committee of the general managers of the western railroads and brotherhood of railroad engineers and firemen spent the day Saturday in preparing to submit their wage dispute to the federal board of mediation, who came here from Washington and opened sessions Monday. Acceptance by the men's leaders late Friday of the federal offer of mediation after they had declined to consider it, alleging that the roads had not been bound in the past by arbitration courts' decisions, roused hopes that the wide differences between the engineers and firemen and their employers might be adjusted.

No compromise offers between the 55,000 engineers and firemen of the western roads and the operators have been made public.

Conferences between the union leaders and the managers were suspended Thursday after exchanges of letters indicated no wavering on either side.

The controversy dates back to October of last year, when the engineers and firemen began increasing their demands. The managers claim that now the requests for more pay, shorter hours and changed working conditions would cost the roads involved $33,000,000 a year or 50 per cent of the yearly wage now paid.

"The fact that several counties are perfecting arrangements for a good health organization is encouraging evidence of the rapidly growing spirit of sanitation among people. We earnestly plead for an organization in every county. Where conditions prove that a county organization cannot be developed, why not organize city, village and township good health movements?"

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

WORKING OUT THE PROBLEM OF FARM LABOR AT PORTS OF ENTRY.

SEC. CARTON WRITES LETTER

Experts From Federal Agricultural Department to Visit Michigan and Help Improve Potato Crop.

[By Guard M. Hayes.]

Lansing, Mich.—Secretary A. C. Carton of the public domain commission finds that the farmers of Michigan appreciate the efforts of the public domain commission in assisting them to secure desirable farm laborers and the new plan inaugurated by Secretary Carton and Chairman Frederick C. Martindale several months ago is working out in a most satisfactory manner.

Secretary Carton is sending to farmers in various parts of the state the following letter: "The public domain commission and immigration commission of Michigan is desirous of assisting the farmers, as far as possible, in procuring farm laborers to work upon the farms of this state. With this object in view we have a special representative of the Michigan immigration department located at the port of entry, in the city of New York, for the purpose of directing desirable immigrants from the rural districts of Europe to the farms of Michigan."

"Our great industrial activities in the cities during the last two decades have made heavy drafts upon the rural districts and the drift of labor has been from the country towards the cities. This, in addition to the fact that a great many of our young men and women have left the rural districts and gone to the manufacturing centers, has left the rural districts without the labor necessary to produce the agricultural products the land is capable of producing. This shifting of our population, whereby the consumers have increased out of proportion to the producers, is the main reason for the high cost of living."

"With all the talk about the farmer's great prosperity, I am thoroughly convinced that the farmer, even with the present prices, is not making any more money, or as much as he should. I am also convinced that it costs the farmer fifty per cent more to produce an article today than it did fifteen years ago. Any movement to reduce the high, or check the higher, cost of living at the expense of the producer, will be a blow at the root of the whole industrial situation of this country. The net annual income of the farmer, which represents his purchasing power, must be preserved. In order that the industrial activities of the city may continue. The greater the prosperity of the rural districts, the greater the prosperity of the urban. The country needs the city and the city needs the country."

"The efforts of the Michigan immigration department will be directed along the line of assisting the rural districts in obtaining a larger production, by supplying farm labor to help do the producing. In this way it is hoped that the prosperity of the farmer will be increased and the prosperity of the country as a whole."

"There are about 190,000 farms in Michigan, half of which hire help. This would make 95,000 farms in the state upon help is needed. The best statistics available show that there is only about one-half enough farm labor obtainable in this country, and if this is true we can use 49,000 good, honest, industrious farm laborers helping the farmers of this state which will have a great effect upon the prosperity of the rural districts."

Farmers who are in need of help are requested to fill out a blank which accompanies Carton's letter showing the number of men he wishes to hire and giving the nature of their duties. The farmer is also asked to state which nationality is most acceptable, whether experienced or "green" hands are desired and whether married or single men are preferred. The prospective employer is also requested to tell whether children are objectionable and whether the services of a farm hand's wife are desired, giving the wages to be paid in all cases. The hours of labor and a declaration as to whether the position is of a permanent nature must also be stated.

Replies are forwarded to the Michigan immigration agent at New York and he gets into direct communication with a farmer in need of help whenever desirable applicants are available. Many farmers have benefited by this plan which costs them nothing and it is expected to develop into one of the big features of the work of the public domain and immigration bureaus.

The recently inaugurated state-wide campaign for the improvement of the Michigan potato crop will in August receive support from the federal department of agriculture, which has announced to A. C. Carton that three specialists will arrive here next month to join with Michigan workers in the grappling of the tuber problem.

One of the specialists with the federal party will be Geheimrat D. R. Appel, of Berlin, Europe's leading authority upon potato diseases. The other government experts will be W. A. Orton, pathologist in charge of cotton and truck diseases and sugar plant investigations and William Stuart, potato specialist for the department of agriculture at Washington. They will be joined by Prof. George W. Coons, Michigan's plant pathologist, and C. W. Ward, secretary of the Michigan Potato Growers' association.

All five men will tour the state. On August 15 they will make a general inspection of the potato growing districts of southwestern Michigan, on August 16 they will go north and on August 17 and 18 they will visit Houghton and other points in northern Michigan.

According to word received at M. A. C. from Washington, the purpose of the trip will be to promote the breeding of new productive and disease resistant varieties, the production of improved strains of standard varieties for seed purposes, the elimination of diseases that are carried by seed potatoes and the introduction of an official system of seed inspection and certification with adequate standards and safeguards.

Officers of the various breweries contributing to the fund collected by the Personal Liberty League with a view to defeating local option in Ingham county, may be prosecuted under the terms of the corrupt practices act, according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Fellows to Prosecuting Attorney Hayden of Ingham county. "It has heretofore been the holding of this department that a committee organized for the purpose of conducting a campaign upon the question of the adoption of local option must be deemed to be a political committee within the meaning of the statute, and if this construction be correct, it seems apparent that the law was flagrantly violated during the local option contest in Ingham county," said Fellows.

"It has come to the attention of the Industrial Accident Board," said Secretary Richard L. Drake, "that some adjusters, to induce the signing of settlement receipts, are making statements to injured employees that such adjusters have received a ruling from the Industrial Accident Board on the injured man's case and that the Board has ruled that the compensation to be paid is limited to a certain amount. These payments, the Board has been given to understand, have been offered on the mythical basis of a so-called ruling by the Board. Every employee of Michigan should understand," continued Secretary Drake, "that no ruling is made by the Industrial Accident Board until both parties have had full opportunity to be heard. This principle has been so well established by the Board that we are surprised to learn that any settlement is being attempted on any basis other than that provided by the act itself. Insurance men and adjusters generally are complying not only with the letter of the law, but also its spirit and in almost all cases the Board has found them fair in their adjustments. A word of warning, however, seems to be necessary at this time, and injured employees should carefully read any agreements or receipts which they are asked to sign, and if they have any doubt on the subject a letter to the Board will gain for them any necessary information. Our bulletin 'Information to Employees' will be sent on request."

Governor Ferris has appointed the following delegates to attend the 1914 meeting of the American Prison association at St. Paul, Minn., October 3 to 8.

Attorney General Fellows has rendered an opinion to the effect that an excess of signatures on nominating petitions over the percentage fixed by statute, will not authorize the rejection of the entire petitions. The candidates may gather as many petitions as they desire but the county clerks and secretary of state will have to consider more than the number required by law. Fellows also holds that any registered and qualified voter may sign a nominating petition.

CARRANZA WILL RECEIVE ENVOYS FROM CARBAJAL

Constitutionalist Chief Carranza Willing to Suspend Fighting

WASHINGTON HOPEFUL AFTER MESSAGE MONDAY

Rebels Are Willing to Grant Amnesty to People Generally But Will Prosecute Plotters Against Madero.

Washington.—General Carranza Monday informed the United States government that he was ready to declare a suspension of hostilities against the government of Provisional President Carbal, Huerta's successor, pending negotiations with his representatives for the transfer of authority at Mexico City to the constitutionalists.

The constitutionalist chief expressed his views in most cordial terms to John R. Sullivan, personal representative of President Wilson, and Consul General Hanna and Vice-Consul Robertson, who interviewed him at Monterey. Not only did he voice a willingness to receive the commission of three appointed by Provisional President Carbal to discuss peace, but said he would send an escort to meet them and provide safe conduct through constitutionalist territory.

Secretary Bryan Is Hopeful.

Secretary Bryan announced the receipt of the message from the American representatives with the comment that prospects for an agreement between the two factions now were very favorable. Earlier in the day, Mr. Bryan had been shown by Minister Suarez, of Chile, a copy of the last note from the constitutionalist agency here, dated several days ago, saying Carranza would not talk peace with the Huerta delegates or representatives of any government derived from the Huerta regime.

Inasmuch as the three men chosen by Mr. Carbal are constitutionalists who have been in hiding in Mexico City and are thoroughly in accord with General Carranza's policies, as well as personal friends of Mr. Carbal, the impression now is general that the negotiations for a transfer of authority of government will be successful.

To Give Limited Amnesty.

General Carranza is insistent, however, that the surrender of the Carbal government should be unconditional. He is willing, it is declared, by his representatives here, to grant a limited amnesty not as a condition of surrender, but as a voluntary act of generosity on the part of the constitutionalists after they obtain the reins of government. It is the intention of the constitutionalists to give guarantees of safety to the people generally, but to prosecute ring-leaders in the plot through which Madero was overthrown. Most of the latter, however, already have left Mexico.

TWO PERISH AS HOME BURNS

Fire at Farm House Takes Toll of Two Lives at Bingham.

Traverse City, Mich.—When fire destroyed the farm house of Will Michem, of Bingham, Monday morning, his mother, Mrs. John Martin, and his 11-year-old brother, of this city were burned to death.

Mr. Michem arose, built the fire and started out to do his morning chores. His wife, who slept next to the kitchen, was awakened by the dishes falling out of a cupboard in the kitchen and managed to get out of the house with her year-old baby, after receiving several bad burns. No help could reach the occupants of the upstairs rooms.

Mrs. Martin and her son arrived Saturday to make a short visit.

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

NORWAY.

The great feature of the celebration of July 4 in Christiania was the presentation of a bronze bust of Abraham Lincoln to Norway by the state of North Dakota. The presentation speech was made by Governor Haugen, who said in part: "Among the peoples that for many years have come flowing into North Dakota from Europe there have come many men and women from the northland. About one-third of the several hundred thousand people who live within the borders of North Dakota came either from Norway direct or are of Norwegian parentage. They established towns, villages and cities and in the years that have gone by they have done their part in the building up and in the making of a great state. And now in this year of 1914 the eyes of the Norwegian people in America have turned again with love and reverence to the fatherland of Norway. Today I am glad to bring to you from the people of North Dakota their kindest and most cordial greetings. On behalf of the people of that state I present to you a bronze bust of the greatest American that ever lived—Abraham Lincoln. In the war between the North and the South many Norwegian-Americans took up arms in defense of the Union. One regiment from the state of Wisconsin was made up almost entirely of Scandinavians, and the record made by that regiment is one of the most honorable made by any regiment of the many thousands of regiments which were engaged in the war. During the dark days of civil strife the Scandinavian people in the United States loved Lincoln. They revere his memory. They honored the principles for which he stood."

Even a cursory examination of the industrial exhibit at the exposition in Christiania would seem to prove the truth of the statement that Norway is fully competent and able to furnish its people with practically all sorts of manufactured goods and that the necessity for foreign purchase exists only as applied to certain articles. The industrial department of the exposition is very generally commented on by all visitors, both foreign and domestic, as being remarkably full, complete and exceptionally fine. Indeed, too much stress cannot be laid on the statement, and even to one who is reasonably well informed regarding the status of the country in this respect the quality and excellence of the exhibit comes as a revelation.

No less than eight Russian saw flares have spent weeks in the country north of Trondhjem. No one ever noticed that they worked at their trade, except that one of them spoiled a knife and a pair of scissors in grinding them, proving that this was not his trade. But they all studied the country in general and the military grounds in particular. No wonder that the Norwegians pull themselves together in their efforts to strengthen their defenses.

The government is in favor of permitting the Osa Waterfalls company to develop 44,000 horsepower in the Austdola river, Hardanger. The company is to be controlled by Norwegians. The life of the concession is to be 65 years, but the state may take possession of the plant in forty years. The company is to pay a tax of 12.5 cents per horsepower at first, but in the course of time this shall be gradually doubled.

The Molde Savings bank is seventy-five years old. It was started with a capital stock of $360.50. The deposits at the present time exceed $1,350,000, and the assets of the bank are $137,000.

The Norwegian whaling companies operating in the New Shetland islands brought back 194,000 barrels of oil as the season's output, as compared with 172,200 last year. The number of vessels engaged in the traffic was 26.

A drydock is to be constructed at Borge, on the island of Karmoy, where the natural advantages are said to be exceedingly favorable. It is to be large enough for the biggest merchant vessels and the vessels of the navy. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost to the country because Norway has no large drydock.

Many fishermen who were operating at Yards and other fishing grounds in West Finnmark were so unsuccessful that they had to be taken home at the expense of the poor fund.

DENMARK.

Copenhagen has just had the world's first anti-fly exposition. The whole show was the work of one man, "the famous Fly-Swatter, Falck," as he is called by our authority. The great industrial union of Denmark permitted him to use part of its building for the exposition. The following information appeared in large letters at the entrance: "During the summer one fly can easily get 195,312,500 descendants." But Mr. Falck has a terrible arsenal of weapons for destroying the fly. There are fly papers, fly poisons, fly traps, electric fly killers, electric chairs, and what not. Mr. Falck is in dead earnest, and so great is his enthusiasm that he claims that in ten years there shall be no more flies in Denmark.

Ole Oleson, a motion-picture millionaire in Copenhagen, is said to have asked Knud Rasmussen, the arctic explorer, to make a trip to the North pole for the purpose of getting films for moving pictures. Mr. Oleson is ready to pay all the expenses of the expedition.

SWEDEN.

The new Norwegian-American steamship line was a success from the start. Now the Swedes are in a fair way to start a stronger company. Much of the capital stock will no doubt be subscribed by Swedish-Americans. Committees to serve as advisory boards have been organized in about thirty American cities. Of the capitalization the Swedish government will advance a loan of $810,000, besides its subsidy, and nearly the full amount of the $1,620,000 that the general public in Sweden was invited to subscribe has been raised. About $1,050,000 of the total capital was allotted to the American side, in order that the interest in the project should be widely distributed and to strengthen the relationship between the Swedes at home and the Swedes in America. Orders for two steamers of 19,000 tons displacement will be placed next October, according to the present plans. The service will be biweekly at first, but it is planned to get two more steamers and begin a weekly service.

At an entertainment given by the Stenhammar Stock Insurance company a calf given to the company by Prince Wilhelm was raffled away. The calf was won by a gentleman who accompanied the prince. He gave the calf back to the company and it was put up at public auction. The highest bid was $7.00, the calf being knocked down to another personal friend of the prince. This man also gave the calf back to the company, and it was put up at auction a second time. Finally a farmer bought the calf for $4 and kept it. The animal really proved to be a "golden calf" to the insurance company.

President Poincare of France is going to visit the king of Sweden July 22. The meeting of the rulers will take place at Tullgarn, and will be an informal affair. President Poincare is going to stay about half a day in Stockholm. Next in order is a visit to the court of Denmark the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth of July. On the twenty-ninth he will make a short visit to the king of Norway, and expects to arrive in Paris the thirty-first. President Poincare is to visit the court of Russia immediately before going to Scandinavia.

An elderly man named Magnus Jonsson was painting a roof at Arbora. Accidentally he grasped an electric wire carrying 220 volts. He was stunned and rolled to the ground. This seemed to be enough to kill a man twice. But Magnus soon began to stir, and when he came to he was asked how he felt. "Well," he said, "my fingers feel a little queer." But in other respects he had nothing to complain of in particular.

Magnus Chirholm, the Swedish consul general in New York, warns the Swedes against emigrating to America at the present time. A great number of men have been laid off, he says. In summer any amount of people may find work on the farms, but in winter only the best men can find work. Store clerks and accountants are simply a drag on the market in America, according to his report.

The rush of people to the exposition at Malmø has been enormous on certain days. In a single day the railroads brought 50,000 people from outside points. The city has a population of a little less than 100,000, and the question is how so many strangers could be accommodated even for a few hours. On another day the street cars carried 94,000 passengers.

Lieut. G. De Forat, pilot, and M. Hygerth, a passenger, were seriously injured when their aeroplane fell about 100 feet. The accident occurred near Jonkoping and was the first aviation accident in Sweden.

An old man at Naas had accumulated $225 by saving and pinching for many years. He hardly knew where to put his treasure for fear that some one might steal it. He finally put the money in a tin can and buried it under a stump in the woods. When he came back the money was gone.

The Swedish riksdag has received a petition signed by 350,000 women urging women's enfranchisement. A bill having that object is now in the diet and has the support of the entire liberal party, but it is expected the first chamber will reject it.

"There is happiness where swallows build their nests," says a Scandinavian proverb. If this is true there must be joy galore at a farmer's house in Skjold, Skania, for there are thirty-two swallows' nests under the eaves of two houses.

White Costumes Seen at the Races

At those fashionable sporting events in and near Paris, which are attended by a great concourse of people more interested in styles than anything else, one may expect to see the best efforts of the most capable designers of apparel in the world. The Jockey club races at Auteuil, the French Derby at Chantilly and the event of the Grand Prix mark the launching of ideas for the coming fall, as Easter sees them on parade for the summer which follows it. Here is a snapshot picture, taken at Chantilly, in which gowns made up in midsummer fabrics are cut on lines that promise well for fall. As the last word in summer gowns and as showing changes in style tendencies they are equally interesting.

At the right a gown of white tulle is a model of elegance and midsummer comfort. The model could be copied in light-weight linen or in white voile, or voile and tulle combined, with just as good results. From the standpoint of durability linen and fine cotton crepes are most reliable.

It will be seen that the underskirt is wide enough to allow a comfortable stride and that the tunic is longer than those of earlier design. It is laid in side plaits all around and finished with a hemstitched two-inch hem at the bottom. The blouse is plain, with three-quarter-length sleeves. It is finished with a sailor collar and turn-back cuffs, with its only decoration a small lace vest and hemstitching on sleeves and collar.

A white satin hat, lined with black velvet and trimmed with white feathers, a black enamel and rhinestone brooch, a broad black ribbon sash, with white shoes and stockings, make up the details of this exquisite toilette.

At the left a gown in white crepe and heavy lace repeats the plain skirt and long tunic style just described. It is completed with a little coat opening over a silk vest, which is cleverly cut into long points. Very handsome fine pearl buttons are set close together down the front of the vest.

The helmet turban of white feathers is a fad in which fashionables are indulging just now. It has one point of advantage over white satin or silk hats—it will outlast them in usefulness. Made of feathers it may be worn in the winter time.

Black slippers and white stockings and a very broad sash of white ribbon complete this graceful costume.

Outing and Sports Hats

If you are looking for an outing hat you may be sure that a sailor shape in one of the numerous varieties in which the sailor is made is to be found that will be becoming to you. It appears that about everything that has a brim of moderately regular width is classed under this name and it is really a matter of convenience to have it so.

Outing hats are usually pressed shapes of straw or hemp which are bought ready for lining and trimming. They are trimmed with wings or feathers or novelties that will stand more or less of the wear and tear of daily use. For trimming them, durable wings, feather breasts, pompons, strong ribbons and ornaments, especially manufactured for them, are brought out each season.

The hat for summer sports needs no trimming. The simplest of bands as a finish, or a flat bow at most, is appropriate for head-wear that fulfills its mission when it covers the head, stays on and shades the eyes. Two pretty examples of sports hats are shown in the illustration given here. One of them is of white corduroy and the other of white satin. They are comfortable and beautiful and their life is a short but very busy one, lasting about six weeks in the heart of the summer.

The outing hat pictured is of white hemp trimmed with a long white wing springing from a feather base. Two jet pins are thrust through the wing and sash. There is a narrow band of white ottoman ribbon about the base of the crown.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Little Girls' Summer Hats. Hats for little girls are quaint in shape and are adorned with clusters of small flowers, ribbon or lace. Frequently the underbrims are lined with chiffon or tulle.

Not interfere with washing them, and there is no tedious sorting when the laundry comes home.

Sewing Hint.

The best way to reduce mending is to guard against it. You will find that one reason why children's clothes rip is because the seams are sewed with cotton thread, which is brittle. Any dress which will give hard wear should be made up entirely of silk. The sun and water rot cotton, but does not affect silk.

Fundamental Principles of Health

FACTORY CASUALTIES.

Assuming that we were indulging in glittering generalities and surmises, as is very frequently the case in such presentations, the statement of facts concerning the shoe as a source of trouble and the deductions therefrom have been questioned. This justifies a repetition and amplification of the main facts and principles cited in the former paper.

Because it is officially recorded and accepted as evidence of weakness in organizations on which the great nations expect to rest the defense of their national life, we take it for granted that the statement that the shoe is the source of a general disability from foot excoriations in the shoe wearing armies of the world amounting to at least 30 per cent will be accepted as approximately correct.

Soldiers wear shoes chosen more for the purpose of protection and comfort than for any consideration of appearance. The civilian, on the other hand, especially if young and inexperienced, considers style and what others may think of his foot-gear above every other thing.

Now, if selected physical specimens of hardy, trained men using their best efforts to secure comfort and efficiency experience 30 per cent disability from shoes so chosen, it is not unreasonable to assume that even a higher rate prevails among civilians, and this is undoubtedly the chief reason why so few persons have the walking habit these days—they cannot walk because their shoes will not permit them to do so in comfort.

That too is why so many flabby-nosed, pasty-faced men and women are seen on our streets. Such stock is timid and cowardly, and is easily thrown into panic or disease, and is therefore a logical source of origin for many social and industrial ills.

The margin of safety in many industries is the matter of a fraction of an inch, and anything, whether it be an ear-ache, a tooth-ache or a foot-ache that diverts the mind from the work at hand tends to reduce the alertness and general muscular control, and the loss of so much as that fraction of an inch means inevitable mutilation.

Statistics covering accidents in factories in Illinois for a period of one year show that between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning there were 120 accidents, and this number steadily and progressively increased until in the hour between 11 and 12, noon, 257 accidents were recorded. Then between 1 and 2 o'clock, afternoon, 111 accidents occurred, and the number again increased progressively hour after hour until, between 4 and 5 o'clock, the maximum of 260 accidents was reached. This shows a total of 517 accidents in the fatigued state as against 231 accidents when approximately fresh. And carefully note the difference between the first morning hours and the first afternoon hours.

The difference between the early morning hour and the early afternoon hour is comparatively slight, but it is highly significant in that it points to personal negligence on the part of the operator between the hours of 5 p. m. and 8 a. m. It brings the subject of social conditions in the home to the front, opens up the matter of personal hygiene, of sleeping quarters, of habits of food, drink, smoking, and everything that takes place outside the factory.

The writer frankly confesses that, as the result of observations made in some twelve or more states, if he were a manufacturer, a banker or a merchant he would not employ any person with pinched and sore feet to operate any power machine capable of injuring the operator or a fellow employee, or to handle or account for any material sum of money, or to transact any business requiring exactness and executive ability. For it is demonstrated beyond the shade of a doubt that no mind can consciously entertain two impressions at the same time, and therefore keen and sustained alertness is impossible to any individual under physical irritation.

In the unity of materials, machinery and men that constitutes the modern factory organization, the most important factor is the men. Every concern of any size has its purchasing agents, its inspectors and laboratories to examine and test incoming and outgoing materials; its machinists and inventors to keep the mechanical part to a standard of efficiency; but little attention has been given the most fundamental of all the factors—the men.

Efficiency depends on close attention, imagination and the ability for quick adjustment. Unexpected and suddenly occurring complications demand instant decision without time for reflection, and herein the man under irritation becomes a source of danger to himself and to his fellow employees, for he is in a state where the element of danger results in an emotional wave which may produce a temporary motor paralysis or overthrow of reason.

Multitudes are working longer than their present condition justifies, and therefore beyond their capacity; and the need of the multitudes is the effort of the individual personally to use his intelligence to bring himself up to a higher standard of human efficiency.

THE SHOE.

Napoleon, probably the greatest military authority the world has produced, is quoted as stating that "an army travels on its belly"; but modern military authorities have discovered that an army needs feet fully as much as food to be an efficient fighting machine.

The records show that over 30,000 German soldiers were incapacitated for duty during the first few weeks of the Franco-Prussian war on account of injuries to the feet; and exhortations of the feet figure as the cause of one-third of all exemptions from active service among young French soldiers during campaign.

Under date of February 5, 1914, the acting surgeon general, war department, Washington, D. C., writes as follows:

"Many examples might here be cited, but the following instance which occurred in the experience of the shoe board is sufficiently typical.

"In 1908, a battalion of United States Infantry took a practice march in shoes which the men had themselves selected. It marched eight miles, went into camp for 24 hours, and then returned by the same route to the post. The members of the board examined the feet of all the men of the battalion at the end of the first day and on their return. On the first day 30 per cent, and on the last day 38 per cent of the command were found to have severe foot injuries, some requiring hospital treatment.

The shoe board above referred to was a board of officers of the United States Army detailed to locate the source of and remedy for foot troubles, which have been the bane of all armies since shoes have been worn. The army board went at the problem with a thoroughness never before practiced in any country by the military authorities. The feet of thousands of men were measured, photographed, and X-ray pictures of the bones were taken, in all sorts of positions and under all kinds of conditions. And after four years of such thorough investigation the board has reported its remedy—a perfect fitting shoe. Surely, a simple and fundamental solution—correct the cause and there can be no trouble.

Secretary of War Stimson accepted the report, and so important do the military authorities regard this matter that the shoe recommended is the only type which officers and enlisted men are permitted to wear with their uniforms.

More than 75 per cent of the people have trouble with their feet. "Their shoes don't hurt them, it's their feet!"—this being one of those peculiar intellectual quibbles we are all guilty of when forced to admit a stupid standpoint.

The shoe is shrouded in all the prejudices, the tradition and the mist of antiquity, and is therefore a subject on which the majority are exceedingly opinionated and touchy. The very high heel was invented by the ancients. They distinguished their gods and heroes by making them wear shoes with very high heels and thick soles. Of course, the women of short stature were not long in grasping the idea, and it quickly became fashionable.

In all industrial establishments the records show a steadily increasing percentage of accidents hour after hour until the noon rest. Then, beginning some below the noon maximum, the afternoon record advances progressively to the maximum for the day. Obviously lack of alertness due to exhaustion is responsible for this phenomenon. How much longer will these blood sacrifices be made to the god of fashion and convention? This is a condition not to be reached by legislation however wise, nor by safeguards however numerous—it can only be reached by individual intelligence and alertness, by education.

This is an age of industrial war. Nations are but a collection of individuals, and each individual is or should be an asset. By the certain action of the law of the survival of the fittest the nation most wisely developing its resources can survive. This being true, the subject of correctly fitted shoes becomes of paramount importance to any people who hope to win in the coming struggle for industrial supremacy.

EXIT TITIAN, ENTER GARIBALDI!

French Artist Cleans Old Canvas He Bought for a Song, With Unexpected Results.

There is a danger in being too thorough. The Vienna expert who has so carefully cleaned a painting as to bring to light a Titian beneath should rest content and not carry his renovation too far.

Some four years ago a French artist had reason to repent the use of too much elbow grease in a similar task. Holiday making in Italy, his trained eye detected a Titian in a picture priced for a mere song at a second hand shop, of which picture he quickly became the owner. But Italian law forbids the exportation of works of art, so being an artist, he lightly painted over the Titian an excellent portrait of Victor Emmanuel and easily passed it through the customs at the frontier.

Safe in Paris, he set to work with cleaning materials and the king of Italy soon came off. But he cleaned the Titian so thoroughly that the master disappeared as well and a third picture—the foundation of the series—came to light, a portrait of Garibaldi in the famous red shirt, circa 1850!

Antiquity of Geology. Authentic evidence has been found which carries geology back, as a human study, as far as the bronze age. Herr O. Merkell claims that he has discovered that fossils were intelligently collected at that remote period of European history. In a cinerary urn of that age, he has found two or three specimens of each of 58 species of fossil shells, with some of the modern Mediterranean shells for comparison.—Independent.

To Shell Pecans. The meats of pecan nuts may easily be removed if they are first placed in a pan and boiling water poured over them, says the Western Christian Advocate. Allow them to remain in the water for 10 or 20 minutes. When the nuts are cracked the meats come out without trouble and are usually whole.

The Christian Finding His Place

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department
Meady Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—"As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent thee into the world."—Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you. John 17:18, 19:21.

The failure of the church in these days is sometimes attributed to the wide prevalence of materialism, formalism, commercialism and departure from the truth, but may it not be in the members of the church not properly recognizing their mission, which is very directly presented in the text? The two small words "as" and "so" as found in the text, are very significant. "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." It is not for us to examine into the counsels of eternity, but we know there was a purpose in the sending of Jesus Christ to this earth on the part of the father, and a willingness to perform that mission by the Son, who said: "I am come to do thy will, O God." Therefore, these phases of the mission of Jesus Christ that may help the Christian to understand what his mission is.

1. Jesus was sent to be a perfectly holy life. We may indeed say that God wanted to show the world that there could be a perfect life in one wearing the human body. Jesus asked in his great intercessory prayer that his disciples might be sanctified through the truth, that is, made holy. While we cannot get along without the atonement of Jesus Christ by death, we cannot get on without this holy life. Jesus challenged his enemies to charge him with any sin, and their testimony is on record, that they could find no fault with him. The moral glory of Jesus Christ is one of the best testimonies to the genuineness of his mission.

The mission of his disciples is likewise to exemplify holiness. It must not be negative only, the avoiding of evil, but it must be positive, and will come out in making the Word of God the guide of life, in prayer, in meditation and in a correct outward deportment according to God's law.

2. The mission of Jesus Christ was also that of saving. It is true that we may think of Christ as saving us by dying for us on the cross, thus making a substitutionary sacrifice, but it must not be forgotten that while he was upon earth he was a soul-winner. He did not seem to be a soul-winner in his popular preaching. He gathered his disciples only by one, he won the woman of Samaria, Zaccheus and Bartimaeus. He sought the people, those straying on the mountains of sin. His disciples in these days must remember that this work of saving is, in a sense, their chief mission. If the church would arise in its mission, the entire world of mankind would soon be brought into submission to Jesus Christ. Yet, not possibly one out of ten is a recognized soul-saver. We might ask in astonishment, Why is this, as the burden of responsibility in this text rests on Christians, and the promises of success are abundant?

3. Jesus Christ was sent to suffer in the flesh, so are his disciples. We can never think of Jesus Christ as a hilarious or lachrymose, but as sorrowful, burdened with the sins of the entire world. He was poor, and did not know where to lay his head, had no honor in his own country, was despised and rejected of men. He worked incessantly, though hungry and thirsty and weary, and at last in early life was crucified to death.

His disciples are also to suffer, yet most of them seek their own ease, and congratulate themselves that they are escaping poverty, hunger, and opposition of men. Jesus Christ was not as John the Baptist, clothed with camel's hair, and otherwise a denizen of the wilderness, but in the midst of civilization he did not take advantage of its conveniences and luxuries. Would not the suffering that his disciples today should endure by willing poverty, soon give the gospel to every sinning man upon the face of the earth, and thus hasten the coming of the Lord? Sometimes we are called to suffer pain and sickness, not connected with our work. May this not be God's method of purifying us? How few there are upon this earth that would be worthy of walking in the footsteps of suffering with the son of God, the fourth one in the first Christian era now are groveling, they are living on the limits of their privileges. Why should they not rise to the higher level of privilege and experience? The answer to this question might be that they are not willing to live the life that Christ lived, receiving the approval of God; they are not willing to give themselves to soul-saving, and not willing to suffer for his sake.

Wise Use of Powers. To turn away from useless and barren speculations, to withdraw persistently our thoughts from the unknown, the inevitable and the irreparable, to concentrate them on the immediate present and on the nearest duty, to waste no moral energy on excessive introspection or self-absorption or self-righteousness, but to make the cultivation and the wise use of all our powers the supreme ideal and end of our lives; to oppose labor and study to affliction and regret; to keep at a distance gloomy thoughts and exaggerated anxieties; "to see the individual in connection and cooperation with the whole," and to both upon effort and action as the main elements both of duty and happiness!—William Edward Hartpole Lecky.

Mrs. Marjorie Hanson entertained with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Ethel Tromble. There were 23 ladies present and many of them were kept busy hemming napkins. After the lunch, Miss Tromble was asked to pull the ribbon that loosened the umbrella and down came a shower of beautiful gifts. Every one present enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon.

Grayling Chapter No. 83 Visited by Grand Conductress.

On Thursday of last week the Eastern Star Chapter was honored by a visit from the Grand Conductress, Sister Bangham of Albion. Everything was in readiness to receive the Worthy Grand Matron, Sister Melina Maxin, on Wednesday, when a message was received stating she had missed her train. Having her schedule all made out necessitated her going on to Gaylord and deputizing Sister Bangham to come here.

The initiatory work was exemplified by the officers of the chapter. In the evening and Sister Bangham complimented the chapter upon the manner of doing the work and had but few corrections to make. She gave a splendid talk on the principles of the order. A lunch was served in the basement, the tables being set to form a star, each one having the color of one of the points.

Sister Bangham gave a very interesting talk about the Masonic Home in Alma, which was enjoyed by all. The Worthy Matron then presented her with a little gift from the chapter and Sister Bangham presented Martha Joseph with a spoon with the inscription O. E. S. on it.

The visit was enjoyed by all members who were present.

The Hollow of Her Hand

The Hollow of Her Hand.

When Booth called in the afternoon at Sara's apartment, he was met by the news that she was quite ill and could see no one—not even him. The doctor had been summoned during the night and had returned in the morning, to find that she had a very high temperature. The butler could not enlighten Booth further than this, except to add that a nurse was coming in to take charge of Mrs. Randall, more for the purpose of watching her symptoms than for anything else, he believed. At least, so the doctor had said.

Two days passed before the distressed young man could get any definite news concerning her condition. He unconsciously began to think of it as a malady, not a mere illness, due of course to a remark Carroll had dropped when Sara had told him the whole truth of the tragedy and of her own vindictive plans. It was Carroll himself who gave a definite report of Sara. He met the lawyer coming away from the apartment when he called to inquire.

"She isn't out of her head, or anything like that," said Carroll uneasily, "but she's in a bad way, Booth. I'll tell you what I think is troubling her more than anything else. Down in her heart she realizes that Hetty Castleton has got to be brought face to face with the Wrاندalls."

"The deuce you say?"

"Today I saw her for the first time. Almost immediately she asked me if I thought the Wrاندalls would treat Hetty fairly if they ever found out the truth about her. I said I thought they would. I didn't have the heart to tell her that their grievance undoubtedly would be shifted from Hetty to her, and that they wouldn't be likely to forgive her for the stand she'd taken. She doesn't seem to care, however, what the Wrاندalls think of her. By the way, have you any influence over Hetty Castleton?"

"I wish I were sure that I had," said Booth.

"Do you think she would come if you sent her a cablegram?"

"I am going over—"

"She will have your letter in a couple of days, according to Sara, who seems to have a very faithful correspondent in the person of that maid. I shudder to think of the cable tolls in the past few months! I sometimes wonder if the maid suspects anything more than a loving interest in Miss Castleton. What I was about to suggest to you is: Couldn't you cable her on Friday saying that Sara is very ill? This is Tuesday."

"I will cable, of course, but Sara must not know that I've done it."

"Can you come to my office tomorrow afternoon?"

"Yes. Tomorrow night I shall go over to Philadelphia, to be gone till Friday. I hope it will not be necessary for me to stay longer. You never can tell about these operations."

"I trust everything will go well, Brandon."

Several things of note transpired before noon on Friday.

The Wrاندalls arrived from Europe, without the recalcitrant colonel. Mr. Redmond Wrاندall, who met them at the dock, heaved a sigh of relief.

"He will be over on the Lusitania, next sailing," said Leslie, who for some reason best known to himself wore a troubled look.

Mr. Wrاندall's face fell. "I hope not," he said, much to the indignation of his wife and the secret uneasiness of his son. "These predatory connections of the British nobility—"

"Predatory!" gasped Mrs. Wrاندall. "—are a blood-sucking lot," went on the old gentleman, firmly. "If he comes to New York, Leslie, I'll stake my head he won't be long in borrowing a few thousand dollars from each of us. And he'll not seek to humiliate us by attempting to pay it back. Oh, I know them."

Leslie swallowed rather hard. "What's the news here, dad?" he asked hastily. "Anybody dead?"

"Sara is quite ill, I hear. Slow fever of some sort, Carroll tells me."

"Is she going to marry Brandy Booth?" asked his son.

Mr. Wrاندall's face stiffened. "I fear I was a little hasty in my conclusions. Brandon came to the office a few days ago and informed me in rather plain words that there is absolutely nothing in the report."

"The deuce you say! God, I wrote her a rather intimate letter—Leslie got no farther than this. He was somewhat stammered and bewildered by his private reflections."

Mr. Wrاندall was lost in study for some minutes, paying no attention to the remarks of the other occupants of the motor that whirled them across town.

"By the way, my dear," he said to his wife, a trifle irrelevantly, "don't you think it would be right for you and Vivian to drop in this afternoon and see Sara? Just to let her know that she isn't without—"

"It's out of the question, Redmond," said his wife, a shocked expression in her face as much as to say that he must be quite out of his head to suggest such a thing. "We shall be dreadfully busy for several days, unpacking and—well, doing all sorts of necessary things."

"She is pretty sick, I hear," mumbled he.

"Hain't she got a nurse?" demanded his wife.

"I merely offered the suggestion in order—"

"Well, we'll see her next week. Any other news?"

"Mrs. Booth, Brandon's mother, was operated on for something or other day before yesterday."

"Oh, dear! The poor thing! Where?"

"Philadelphia, of course."

"I wonder if—let me see, Leslie, isn't there a good train to Philadelphia at four o'clock? I could go—"

"Really, my dear," said her husband sharply.

"You forget how busy we are, mother," said Vivian, without a smile.

"Nonsense!" said Mrs. Wrاندall, in considerable confusion. "Was it a serious operation, Redmond?"

"They cut a bone out of her nose, that's all. Brandon says her heart is weak. They were afraid of the ether. She's all right, Carroll says."

"Goodness!" cried Mrs. Wrاندall. "One might have suspected a note of disappointment in her voice."

"I shall go up to see Sara this afternoon," said Vivian calmly. "What's the number of her new apartment?"

"You have been up to see her, of course," said Mrs. Wrاندall acidly.

"He fidgeted. 'I didn't hear of her illness until yesterday.'"

"I'll go up with you, Viv," said Leslie.

"No, you won't," said his sister flatly. "I'm going to apologize to her for something I said to Brandon Booth. You needn't tag along, Les."

At half-past five in the afternoon, the Wrاندall limousine stopped in front of the tall apartment building near the park, a footman jerked open the door, and Miss Wrاندall stepped out. At the same moment a telegraph messenger boy paused on the sidewalk to compute the artistic but puzzling numerals on the imposing grilles of the building.

Miss Wrاندall had herself announced by the obsequious doorman, and stood in patience to wait for the absurd rule of the house to be carried out: "No one could get in without being announced from below," said the doorman.

"I can get in all right, all right," said the messenger boy, "I got a telegram for de lady."

"Go to the rear!" exclaimed the doorman, with some energy.

While Miss Wrاندall waited in Sara's reception hall on the tenth floor, the messenger, having traversed a more devious route, arrived with his message.

Watson took the envelope and told him to wait. Five minutes passed. Miss Wrاندall grew very uncomfortable under the persistent though complimentary gaze of the street urchin. He stared at her, wide-eyed and admiring, his tribute to the glorious, she stared back occasionally, narrow-eyed and reproving, her tribute to the grotesque.

"Will you please step into the drawing-room, Miss Wrاندall," said Watson, returning. He led her across the small foyer and threw open a door. She passed into the room beyond.

Then he turned to the boy who stood beside the hall seat, making change for a quarter as he approached.

"Here," he said, handing him the receipt book and a dime, "that's for you." He dropped the quarter into his coin pocket, where it mingled with coins that were strangers to it up to that instant, and imperiously closed the door behind the boy who failed to say "thank you." Every man to his trade!

There was a woman in the drawing-room when Vivian entered, standing well over against the windows with her back to the light. The visitor stopped short in surprise. She had expected to find her sister-in-law in bed, attended by a politely superior person in pure white.

"Why, Sara," she began, "I am so glad to see you are up and—"

The other woman came forward. "But I am not Sara, Miss Wrاندall," she said, in a well-remembered voice. "How do you do?"

Vivian found herself looking into the face of Hetty Castleton. Instantly she extended her hand.

"This is a surprise!" she exclaimed. "When did you return? Leslie told me your plans were quite settled when he saw you in Lucerne. Oh, I see of course! How stupid of me. Sara sent for you."

"She has been quite ill," said Hetty, returning. "We got in yesterday. I thought my place was here, naturally."

"Naturally," repeated Vivian, in a detached sort of way. "How is she today? May I see her?"

"She is very much better. In fact, she is sitting up in her room." A warm flush suffused her face, a shy smile appeared in her eyes. "She is receiving two gentlemen visitors, to be perfectly honest, Miss Wrاندall, her lawyer, Mr. Carroll, and Mr. Booth."

They were seated side by side on the uncomfortable Louis Seize divan in the middle of the room.

"Perhaps she won't care to see me, after an audience so fatiguing," said Miss Wrاندall sweetly. "And so unappealing," she added, with a smile. Hetty looked her perplexity.

"But who will see you, Miss Wrاندall—if you don't mind waiting. It is a business conference they're having."

An ironic gleam appeared in the corner of Vivian's eye. "Oh," she said, and waited. Hetty smiled uncertainly. All at once the tall American girl was impressed by the wistful, almost humble look in the Englishwoman's eyes, an appealing look that caused her to wonder not a little. Like a flash she jumped at an obvious conclusion, and almost caught her breath. This girl loved Booth and was losing him! Vivian exulted for a moment and then, with an impulse she could not quite catalogue, laid her hand on the other's slim fingers, and murmured somewhat haltingly: "Never mind, never mind!"

"Oh, you must wait," cried Hetty, not at all in touch with the other's mood. "Sara expects to see you. The men will be out in a few minutes."

"I think I will run in tomorrow morning," said Vivian hastily. She arose almost immediately and again extended her hand. "So glad to see you back again, Miss Castleton. Come and see me. Give my love to Sara."

She took her departure in some haste, and in her heart she was rejoicing that she had not succeeded in making a fool of herself by confessing to Sara that she had said unkind things about her to Brandon Booth.

Hetty resumed her seat in the broad French window and stared out over the barren treetops in the park. A frightened, pathetic droop returned to her lips. It had been there most of the day.

In Sara's boudoir, the doors of which were carefully closed, three persons were in close, even repressed conference. The young mistress of the house sat propped up in a luxurious chaise-loungue, wan but intense. Confronting her were the two men, leaning forward in their chairs. Mr. Carroll held in his hand a number of papers, prominent among them being three or four telegrams. Booth's face was radiant despite the serious matter that occupied his mind. He had reached town early in the morning in response to a telephone message from Carroll announcing the sudden, unannounced appearance of Hetty Castleton at his offices on the previous afternoon. The girl's arrival had been most unexpected. She walked in on Mr. Carroll, accompanied by her maid, who had a distinctly sheepish look in her eyes and seemed eager to explain something but could not find the opportunity.

With some firmness, Miss Castleton had asked Mr. Carroll to explain why the woman had been set to spy upon her every moment, a demand the worthy lawyer could not well meet for the good and sufficient reason that he wasn't very clear about it himself. Then Hetty broke down and cried, confessing that she was eager to go to Mr. Wrاندall, at the same time sobbing out something about a symbolic dicky-bird, much to Mr. Carroll's wonder and perplexity.

He sent the maid from the room, and retired with Miss Castleton to the innermost of his private offices, where without much preamble he informed her that he knew everything. Moreover, Mr. Booth was in possession of all the facts and was even then on the point of starting for Europe to see her. Of course, his letter had failed to reach her in time. There was quite a tragic scene in the seclusion of that remote little office, during which Mr. Carroll wiped his eyes and blew his nose more than once, after which he took it upon himself to dispatch a messenger to Sara with the word that he and Miss Castleton would present themselves within half an hour after his note had been delivered.

The meeting between Sara and Hetty was affecting. . . . Almost immediately the former began to show the most singular signs of improvement. She laughed and cried and joyously announced to the protesting nurse that she was feeling quite well again! And, in truth, she got up from the couch on which she reclined and insisted on being dressed for dinner.

In another room the amazed nurse was frantically appealing to Mr. Carroll to let her send for the doctor, only to be rebuffed by his urbane announcement that Mrs. Wrاندall was as "right as a string" and, please God, she wouldn't need the services of doctor or nurse again for years to come. Then he asked the nurse if she had ever heard of a disease called "nostalgia."

She said she had heard of "homesickness."

"Well, that's what ailed Mrs. Wrاندall," he said. "Miss Castleton is the cure."

Booth came the next morning. . . . Even as she lay passive in his arms, Hetty denied him. Her arms were around his neck as she miserably whispered that she could not, would not be his wife, notwithstanding her love for him and his readiness to accept her as she was. She was obdurate, lovingly, tenderly obdurate. He would have despaired but for Sara, to whom he afterwards appealed.

"Wait," was all that Sara had said, but he took heart. He was beginning to look upon her as a sorceress. A week ago he had felt sorry for her; his heart had been touched by her transparent misery. Today he saw her in another light altogether, as the determined, resolute, calculating woman who, having failed to attain a certain end, was now intensely, keenly interested in the development of another of a totally different nature. He could not feel sorry for her today.

Hetty deliberately had placed herself in their hands, withdrawing from the conference shortly before Vivian's arrival to give herself over to gloomy conjectures as to the future, not only for herself, but for the man she loved and the woman she worshiped with something of the fidelity of a beaten dog.

At a later conference participated in by Sara, Booth and Mr. Carroll, the old lawyer spoke plainly.

"Now are you both willing to give serious consideration to the plan I propose? Take time to think it over. No harm will come to Miss Castleton. I am confident. There will be a nine days' sensation, but after all, it is the best thing for everybody. You propose living abroad, Booth, so what are the odds?"

"I can't live abroad unless Hetty reconsiders her decision to not marry me," said the young man dimly.

"Gad, Sara, you must convince her that I love her better than—"

HOPE FOR THE BALD HEAD

Sewing Hairs on Scalp is Proving Successful—Fine Gold Wires Are Used.

A method of sewing hairs in the human scalp in cases of partial or total baldness has been successfully used in several instances by Doctor Seckely, at the hospital of Saint Stephen at Budapest, and a report appears in the London Times.

The number of hairs "planted" in the head of a patient has been as many as 50,000. One hundred hairs are drawn through punctures in the scalp at every square centimeter, and as both ends are left free, the number is thus 200, or over one thousand to each square inch. Very fine gold wires are used, one five-hundredth of an inch in diameter, and fine long hairs from a woman's head are attached to the middle of these. The gold loop or knot acts as an "anchor," and after sterilization is introduced into the subcutaneous tissue, where it is slightly twisted, and holds the hair permanently in position. It is stated that 500 hairs can thus be introduced into the scalp within three-quarters of an hour.

Doctor Seckely has designed a special instrument for introducing and fixing the gold wires. The latter are so light and so fine that the total amount of gold in the scalp after "planting" 50,000 hairs is only one gramme. The hair is stated to appear perfectly natural, and a capsule of tissue appears to form around each gold wire knot. The inflammation resulting from the treatment entirely disappears in from ten to twelve days, and in no case so far has any intense inflammation or suppuration resulted. The hair can be washed, brushed and treated with oil in the ordinary way, and one of the earliest patients so treated, a lady, has retained her hair intact with the original luster and flexibility, for over seven years.

HUERTA'S RULE HAS BEEN ONE OF BLOODSHED

King of Madero Marked Beginning of Despotism.

MADE VAIN BOAST TO TAFT

Dictator Declared He Would Restore Peace at Once, but Refusal of United States to Recognize Him Assured His Downfall.

Victoriano Huerta took oath as provisional president of Mexico February 19, 1913, the day after President Francisco I. Madero, Jr., had been arrested at the national palace.

Three days later Madero and Jose Maria Pino Suarez, vice-president, were shot to death while on a midnight ride under guard from the palace to the penitentiary. The precise manner of their death has never been explained.

One of Huerta's first acts as provisional president was to telegraph William H. Taft, the president of the United States, the following message: "I have the honor to inform you that I have overthrown the government. The forces are with me, and from now on peace and prosperity will reign."

PROVOKES CIVIL WAR.
The Mexican republic, however, was at once plunged into civil war again, notwithstanding the issuance by Huerta of a proclamation of general amnesty. The Sonora state congress officially repudiated the provisional government before Huerta settled himself comfortably in the presidential chair.

Zapata, revolutionary leader to the south of the capital, after negotiating a few days with the new regime, went back to his guerrilla campaign.

Salazar, one of the highest generals in the army, denounced Huerta.

Carranza, constitutionalist leader in Chihuahua, assailed Huerta in a bitter statement made public at San Antonio.

Francisco Villa announced himself an adherent of Madero and joined the northern army.

Francisco Orozco of the clan of the northern revolutionists was the lone notable figure among the disaffected who declared for the new government.

TAFT LEAVES PROBLEM.
President Taft, nearing the end of his term, left to his successor the problem of adjusting diplomatic relations with Mexico. To Woodrow Wilson Huerta sent felicitations on the day of the American president's inauguration.

Hampered at the outset of his administration by the refusal of the United States to recognize him, Huerta soon faced growing difficulties in raising funds to run his government.

His uneasy hold on affairs was weakened by minor constitutionalist victories in the north and by recurring rumors of a break with Felix Diaz, nephew of Porfirio Diaz and Huerta's ally in the overthrow of Madero.

HUERTA CALLS ELECTION.
May 1 Huerta announced that he would urge congress to call elections in October to choose his successor. The congress selected October 26 as the date of the election, and a decree to that effect was issued by Huerta June 8.

Felix Diaz, who had announced himself as a candidate for the presidency, was sent to Japan July 17.

Henry Lane Wilson, American ambassador, was recalled to Washington, and Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires, was left in charge of American interests in Mexico.

REJECTS PEACE EFFORT.
Early in August it became known that President Wilson intended to send John Lind, former governor of Minnesota, to Mexico as his personal representative in an endeavor to arrange a basis for the republic's peace. Huerta announced that he would not tolerate foreign interference.

Nevertheless Mr. Lind delivered his note from President Wilson.

Huerta rejected all proposals made by the American government, chief of which were the suggestions that he resign and not be a candidate election day.

Relations between Mexico and the United States became acute. President Wilson proclaimed his policy in an address before congress to which was attached the correspondence between Mr. Lind and the Huerta administration.

HUERTA ARRESTS DEPUTIES.
Huerta was attacked in the Mexican senate October 5 by Senator Dominguez, who had the hardihood to speak what was in the minds of himself and some of his colleagues. Dominguez disappeared.

The chamber of deputies adopted a resolution calling for an investigation. To this Huerta's reply was dramatic and swift. He marched a column of troops to the deputies' chamber, seized 110 of them and threw them into prison.

Through Mr. O'Shaughnessy the United States made representations against violence to the imprisoned deputies.

In the election campaign certain influence close to the dictator worked for his return to the presidency, with General Blauquet as his running mate.

Tap Underground River.
Ten thousand acres of land in the Santa Cruz valley, Arizona, are irrigated with water obtained by tapping an underground river. Twenty large centrifugal pumps, driven by electric power, bringing an underground river to the surface. At times this river flows on the surface, during the rainy season, but as soon as the dry months come along the water recedes beneath the surface of the earth. Then the electrically-driven pumps raise this water back to the surface so and lent color to the persistent report that Huerta really desired to be elected and that his pretenses to the contrary were a sham.

U. S. DEMANDS HE RESIGN.
When it became certain that the elections had resulted in no constitutional choice on account of the failure of voters to go to the polls, the American government peremptorily called on him to resign.

In a statement to the diplomatic corps November 9 Huerta announced that he would declare the result of the election null and order another election.

November 12 Huerta refused to accede to the American demand for his resignation, and Mr. Lind left Mexico City for Vera Cruz.

Meantime the United States dispatched warships to the Mexican coast and Americans continued to leave Mexico.

U. S. VEERS TO CARRANZA.
Definite proposals were made by the United States to Carranza and his adherents.

Several of the European powers, notably Great Britain, Germany and France, gave strong support to the policy of the United States.

The constitutionalists grew stronger and continued their advance to the south. They captured Victoria, Chihuahua, Juarez and Tullahoma.

The situation became so critical that Great Britain, Germany, France, Spain and Japan ordered warships to Mexican waters.

Fighting continued at Tampico and many other centers. Torreon soon was taken by the constitutionalists.

RAISES EMBARGO ON ARMS.
An embargo placed on the exportation of arms from the United States to Mexico was raised early in February of the present year.

A large number of American troops were concentrated on the border, and the American fleet in Mexican waters was strengthened.

The constitutionalists advanced on Torreon and Monterrey. The former place was captured early in April.

Then came the departure of Mr. Lind from Vera Cruz and the arrest of a party of American bluejackets at Tampico, for which an apology and salute were demanded by the United States and refused by Huerta.

AMERICANS TAKE VERA CRUZ.
April 21 American bluejackets and marines were landed at Vera Cruz in consequence of the reported arrival of a large consignment of arms and ammunition for Huerta. A number of Americans were killed in the street fighting. The Mexicans retired and destroyed a portion of the railroad.

Shortly after a mediation proposal from Argentina, Brazil and Chile was accepted. A conference issued at Niagara Falls.

In the interval American troops relieved the bluejackets at Vera Cruz. These have since remained in occupation of the port.

Tampico and Zacatecas fell into the constitutionalists' hands and the victorious armies continued their march on Mexico City, where rumors were in circulation for many weeks of the resignation of Huerta.

With Huerta's retirement the constitutionalists feel that their revolution has virtually triumphed. They turned against him the moment he overthrew Madero, the constitutional president of Mexico, in February, 1913, and have waged war with unrelenting vigor ever since.

U. S. TROOPS REMAIN IDLE.
The prospect of an early solution of the Mexican problem gave both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan much joy, naturally. American forces will not be withdrawn from Vera Cruz until a stable government has been established in Mexico City and recognition has been accorded the new government.

The feeling is general, however, that Carranza gives guarantees to political offenders as well as the people generally recognition will be promptly extended by the United States and other nations of Central and South America, as well as Europe.

LAWYER IN PLACE OF POWER

For the First Time in History Mexican Republic Has a Civilian in Presidential Chair.

Mexico City.—Francisco Carbajal is forty-four years old, a native of the state of Campeche, and a lawyer. Almost ever since the start of his career he has occupied posts in the judiciary. In the Madero administration he was a senator, but relinquished his post to re-enter the supreme court, of which he was chief justice at the time General Huerta appointed him minister of foreign relations.

When General Porfirio Diaz determined in 1911 to treat with the Madero revolutionists, Senor Carbajal proceeded to Juarez as his commissioner.

Senor Carbajal has a reputation for possessing considerable intellectual force and independence of character. His demeanor is quiet. He shuns the exuberance in verbiage and gesticulation to which Latin-Americans are prone. He is courteous, but a man of few words and little given to elaborate compliments.

Besides, he is neat and well groomed in appearance. His features indicate pure European descent, without any admixture of Indian blood.

Altogether he is a man who conveys an impression of reserve power. He is a man of business.

His ability has never been questioned. He has been sagacious and successful in investments and, while not rich, is a man of independent means. He is a man of family.

The First Speaker.
The first speaker of the house of representatives of the United States was Frederick A. Muhlenberg of Pennsylvania, who was born in Trappe, Pa., in 1750, and died in Lancaster, Pa., in 1801. Muhlenberg was succeeded by Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut, but was returned to the speaker's chair in the third congress. Among his famous successors was Henry Clay, who was speaker of six congresses; James K. Polk, Robert C. Winthrop, Schuyler Colfax, James G. Blaine, John G. Carlisle, Thomas B. Reed, David B. Henderson, Joseph G. Cannon and Champ Clark. Only one speaker of the house—James K. Polk—has ever reached the White House, defeating Henry Clay, ex-speaker.

Puts "Pop" in Actors.
A high-tension dressing room is being installed at the Palace theater for the electrification of performers before they go upon the stage. The room will contain a powerful Tesla coil and the walls will be wound with heavy insulated copper wire carrying high currents. Tired artists will enter this chamber and emerge filled with electricity and enthusiasm. It is expected that a short visit to the "pop house," as the artists have already termed it, will send any actor upon the stage keyed up to blowing-off-steam pressure.—New York American.

Grayling sluggers to seven runs, while they were making hay through the entire nine innings and netted themselves a total of five runs. The game was anybody's up to the seventh inning, when the locals on two timely hits went into the lead, never to be overtaken by the boys from the western part of the state.

Spencer took the hill for the locals and although hit hard, kept his hits well scattered and time and time again when Manistee had men on the sacks and a hit would mean the game, he caused the batters to either hit an easy grounder or retire by the strike-out method.

Young took the stand for the visitors and after the first inning pitched winning ball through the entire game. In the first inning he was wild and as a result walked two men and each base on balls forced in a runner. Without these two runs the game would in all probability have gone into extra innings, as he kept his hits so well scattered throughout the latter part of the game that the locals could only manage to get a runner on bases during each inning.

Grayling started off with a rush in the first inning and with a hit by Toranzo two errors and two bases on balls scored two runs. In the third Manistee evened up the tables when they scored two runs on a single by Young, a triple by Venné and an error by Goode. In the sixth the visitors scored three more on a triple by Endahl, an error, a base on balls and a single by Peterson. The game looked bad for the locals when they came to but in their half of the sixth but a single by Spencer, a base on balls to C. Johnson and a single by Johnson netted the locals three runs and the game was again a tie. In the seventh the locals scored the winning run on two timely hits, and in the eighth to make it sure they added another on an error and a single by Creech.

HE GIVES HIS DAUGHTER AWAY IN MATRIMONY.

Der biggest joke vat I haf ever had vas ven Dinkelspiel came up py my side ven night so long ago not and say to me vill I gif him my daughter's hand.

"For vy do you vant her hand?" I yelt. "Are you afraid of the rest of her, vot?"

Vell, ve all go to der church down and der preacher he stand py den front door. Mine daughter and I ve come in py der side door, aretrey, an Dinkelspiel pretty quick he come in py der back door. Ven ve all gets up py der preacher he tell us for to stop. Und den he says some words out of a book and says: "Der proud fadder vill now gif his beautiful daughter away." Vell, I chust pick dot girl py der vaist, carries her ofer to Dinkelspiel and says: "Here she is, Dinkelspiel, hand und all; may your troubles all be little ones and may you get rid of them as easy as vot I haf."

Dinkelspiel he gets red like a petti-coat and even now, ven I know I haf a son-in-law, Dinkelspiel declares he has no fadder-in-law py his wife.

with the locals and scored one run. Creech had that same old peg with him Sunday.

Johnson's hit in the sixth, which scored three runs, was a fast line drive to right field.

Venné certainly did some hitting—four hits out of four trips to the plate and one of those a triple.

Creech did some quick thinking when he threw out Venné at third in the seventh.

Spencer struck out three men in the sixth.

Goode's throw to the plate on Venné was a city block from the rubber.

Saginaw comes here Saturday and Sunday and they have a good bunch, everybody is coming.

The Gaylord Herald and Times of Friday, July 17, spends an entire front page column in telling how Grayling won the game on last Sunday by the poor decisions of the Grayling umpire. They go on to show how the decisions of the ranker order was the cause of their downfall and how, whenever these two teams are matched to play, Grayling always comes across with some fearful work which means victory for themselves. The article goes on to show how Gaylord does not want to win games unless by fair methods and in fact the article has a little of everything except what it was intended for, and that was a write up of the ball game. We are indeed sorry that any newspaper man would print such an article with as little founding as there is to this one, and we are of the opinion that any man who saw the game would never have attempted to pen such a column even for the editorial page of a large newspaper where all the freak happenings of the universe are recorded, merely to amuse the readers. If the writer of this article will kindly stop and use a little gray matter he will see how absurd his own statements really are. Of course the decision in question was that of Beal's at third, but first let's ask the writer to tell us how the decision was on first with regard to this same runner when their own umpire called him safe. Did the Grayling fans and players run onto the field and claim they had been robbed? Did the umpire who happened to be from Gaylord have to draw a watch and give the Grayling team the time limit? Perhaps this is not the play where Gaylord was robbed of the game, but if the writer will be kind enough to inform us we will be more than glad to reason with him in regard to the play or plays. May we again ask the writer to explain the methods Grayling has used during the past decade which are against the true ethics of base ball, certainly not by trying to run over the ball field during a game as the Gaylord fans did here in Grayling at the Gaylord-Grayling game. Perhaps, Mr. Editor, if your team could defeat Grayling more than three times in the last ten years we would never have heard of our poor methods in robbing a team who we have beaten by as high as 22 to 2. If the writer wishes any information regarding the methods of plays used in their own town the writer of this article will gladly furnish it to them. If we are robbing you of ball games at least be man enough to encourage your team not to play us again until we have made our ways fitting enough to comply with the true Gaylord base ball ethics.

L. D. FINE.

HE TRIES HIS HAND AT RAISING GEES.

Ven vas a geese not a geese? Ven id iss dead, py cholly, dot a ven. I know a good deal ut experience about geese, und id I had der power vot St. Patrick had I could drife dem all out of der country.

Mine wife she wants me to keep geese. She said to me ve make a lot of monies. Lot of monies, hah! I never vill keep a geese again if I haf to eat mud, py cholly.

In der first place, a geese mit got no sense. It don't know der man vot said id dollars for id frunt anyone else, no. It vouldnt make no infermind if I hadn't paid for dem, but ven dey betray mine confidence after I haf received lawful title to dem, I decide right away vot I vill never again befriend a geese, an dot included mine wife vot got me into der pizness, py cholly.

After I haf paid mine goot money for der things von of dem slip up peh him me silently quiet and all of a quickness id make a noise like a ferry boat. I yell, ut course, und in py der shif she yell, too. But she yell because she was tickled—and I didn't.

I might haf forgiven der geese—mine wife an der oder von but in mine hurry to get ofer der fence after dat sudden noise, I say a whole lot of things vill I am going to repeat not, an py cholly, right der at der fence is der preacher und his wife. I never know before vot a heathen geese can put a man out of church, but dot von—der von mit wings, not der von mit der apron on, didt.

Pokeheimer once ran a newspaper, too. He tells about it next week.

Governor Malcolm R. Patterson

Greater Than William J. Bryan: So Says the Johnson City Staff of Malcolm R. Patterson of Tennessee—On the Chautauqua Platform

THE Johnson City (Miss.) Staff says: "Malcolm R. Patterson, former governor of Tennessee, addressed an audience that taxed the capacity of auditorium, gallery, aisles and classrooms at the Central Baptist Church last night, nearly 1,500 people bearing him. Never has a greater speech been delivered to Johnson Cityans. We are mindful of the fact that Bryan, Clark, Hoss, Gallor, McDowell, Stuart, Taylor, Carmack, Taft and other speakers of national reputation have addressed Johnson City audiences, but Malcolm R. Patterson's effort Sunday night, in our judgment, eclipsed anything we have ever heard, and we have heard them all."

"His bearing was most kingly. In the course of an hour and a half he did not hesitate, he did not falter, but made a speech that would have done honor to—well, if Hill, Xancey and Grady, with their tongues of gold, gave their auditors anything finer the veracious chronicler failed to report it. In our judgment, only one man our American civilization has produced could have equaled it, and he is the late Robert Ingersoll."

Governor Patterson will appear on the Lincoln Chautauqua program in this city on the second day, night only. Maybe you have long wanted to know how great were Ingersoll and Grady? Well, then, hear Patterson, who is the twentieth century edition of them all.

Sick Animals

The treatment of diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Dogs and Poultry, is given in Dr. Humphreys' Veterinary Manual, mailed free. Humphreys' Veterinary Remedies, 106 William St., New York.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
